

Identifying Carbon Reduction Opportunities

“Live” Classroom Training

Overview

This course explores actionable strategies for reducing Greenhouse Gas (GHG) emissions within your organisation or on behalf of your clients. Strengthen your commitment to sustainability and align your efforts with SDG 13: Take urgent action to combat climate change and its impacts.

Who should attend?

Carbon and sustainability professionals with a solid understanding of ISO 14064 Part 1:2018, who are eager to identify opportunities for organisational GHG emission reductions.

By attending, you will:

During this 1-day course, you will gain practical insights into reducing emissions across key operational areas, including:

- Building energy use
- Travel and fleet management
- Freight and logistics
- Waste management
- Procurement and supply chain

Prerequisites:

Participants must have a thorough understanding of carbon inventory development according to ISO 14064 Part 1.

If you are new to this topic, we recommend completing the “Preparing a GHG Inventory Training” course beforehand

What Attendees Say

“Overall, I found the course really useful and came away feeling like I had a bit more of a plan for reduction than when I started. I would recommend this course to agencies looking for support in identifying energy, waste, and travel (not air) reduction opportunities.”

What amazing training I had. Thank you so much for the opportunity and I learnt a lot from here. The trainer was very competent and explained well.”

“Good training course, very informative, and Jeff is a knowledgeable, engaging trainer.”
